BWI PRODUCTIONS “UNITES” THE AREA WITH NEW WEBSITE LAUNCH

Expanding group's latest project, “UniteLive.Com”, fills a void in the area by giving a voice to all small businesses and those in the entertainment and leisure industry.

BWI Productions, one of the fastest growing companies in the area, has announced the launch of a new social-networking entertainment/leisure & realty guide website called UniteLive.Com. BWI Productions' goal with this new project is to put the spotlight and focus on all up and coming businesses and all that is happening in the Southeastern US.

BWI Productions' President and CEO, Antwain Booth, is thrilled with the latest in a series of projects that are underway for BWI Productions. “We wanted to give a localized platform for everyone to use to find information and to help get the word out about their prospective interests and business activities. I am more than happy to have this platform come out at a time when the economy is down because it will give people a free means of networking and promoting their goods, services, talents, etc.,” Booth affirms.

ABOUT UniteLive.Com

UniteLive.Com states on its website that it is “Online and in your neighborhood.” All visitors and regular users can find info for local restaurants, clubs, bars, events, businesses, real estate, leisure activities, and stores in their area. Users can also network, befriend each other, discuss their favorite places, get the inside scoop on all of the best local leisure/entertainment, and much more to come. Creating a profile on the site is similar to other social networking sites (Facebook, Myspace, etc.) and literally takes only a minute. UniteLive.Com takes “Around Town” pictures of people out on the town every weekend and has plans for a UniteLive.Com TV that is to debut soon.
